A PROPHET OF PEACE. Penned by Asenath Carver Coolidge. Pictured by Cassius M. Coolidge. Watertown, New York: Hungerford, Halbrook Co., 1907, 227 pages.

The principles of peace are being taught not only by tracts, lectures and treatises on international law, they come into all kinds of writing, and frequently appear in the present day story and novel. The "Prophet of Peace," a story with an old-fashioned farmhouse setting, illustrated generously by quaint and clever pictures of country life, teaches peace in some of the conversations held by its characters. While not a contribution of technical value to the literature of the peace movement, it has its use in calling the attention of the reader to the wisdom of peace and the mistakes of war.
